

What do you think of the Dudley Community Information Directory?

A group of people from voluntary organisations, Dudley CVS, the NHS and Dudley Council are involved in some work together called Building Health Partnerships which has some funding from the government. (You can find out more about this and about us on a website we've set up: www.buildinghealthpartnershipsudley.wordpress.com)

One of the things the group has decided to do is look at ways that doctors and other health professionals could be encouraged to use the Community Information Directory developed by Dudley Council's Libraries Service. This is so that they can let patients know about all sorts of groups and activities in our communities. We also want to find out what people like you think about the Directory.

To begin with, we'd like to ask

Have you ever used the Dudley Community Information Directory?

If you have used it, what did you use it for?

If you haven't used it, please tell us why not

We'd like you to have a look at the Community Information Directory on a computer. You can find it at www.dudleyci.co.uk

Have a look for something you would find interesting or useful for yourself or a family member. Or if you are part of group or organisation which supports people, look for something they might find useful.

You could look for advice about something affecting you, or activities you are interested, or what's on in your area this month.

Then we'd like you to tell us:

How easy was it to use the Community Information Directory?

Could you quickly get to the information you wanted?
